Ayrton's MagicDot™-R 'robot army' energisevs the Eurovision Song Contest

The 2016 European Song Contest provided lighting designer, Fredrik Jönsson of Eyebrow Designs, Sweden, the opportunity he'd been waiting for: to specify and deploy Ayrton's MagicDot™-R fixtures. A total of 90 units were used throughout the contest, rigged in a highly unusual fashion in a horizontal grid formation and sunken into the centre of the stage.

"I'd had my eyes on the MagicDot-R for some time," says Jönsson, "and when Eurovision's set designers, who wanted a lot of lights at stage level, asked me about integrating a small aesthetically-appealing moving light into the stage floor, I immediately suggested the MagicDot-R and they loved the look of it. We arrayed them in two 'pools' sunken into the stage and they looked really cool – we called them our 'robot army'! The first draft was for 400 units, but we scaled down to 90 since we needed more floorspace to facilitate the artists...!"

Jönsson concludes, "I really like the MagicDots. As I said, I've had a sweet spot for them for some time and took the first opportunity to add them to my designs, and I'm looking forward to trying the new unit with zoom. Ayrton create great fixtures and I really like the new stuff coming out of R&D. I'm looking forward to trying them all as soon as the right projects come along."
